Organizers to the Rescue will save your home from chaos

Story and Photos Bob Cypher

Janis Kowlowski and Darlene McDermott were working together in the corporate world. When that 'life' changed, they decided to create a business together which involved their amazing ability to organize.

While in the business world, they realized that they had this uncanny ability to make order out of chaos, which led to the formation of their business, Organizers To The Rescue.

The partners each brought individual talents to the table and together the business took off. Their ability to juggle family and career goals further cemented their synchronicity and the business boomed with its own professionally developed website (www.organizertothescue.com), brochures, identical mini-vans with appropriate signage, and membership in NAPO, (National Association of Professional Organizers).

A truly fervent client following has encouraged and supported Janis and Darlene in their pursuit of business independence.

Who is the typical customer of the 'neatnik twosome'? A person who is overwhelmed with the mess in their garage, office, closet, bedroom or kids rooms. A person who wants to reduce the stress in their life and even the frustration and anxiety levels associated with having piles of 'stuff' surrounding them.

Organizers to the Rescue will come in to your situation and within hours will turn your mess into their 'work of art'. They are truly 'wonder women' in their ability to transform total chaos into visual and workable order. The accompanying photos to this story are a real life situation and the end results are unbelievable.

One of the interesting sidebars to this story is the fact that 'the Organizers' are connected to many charitable organizations and deliver bundles of useable clothes, toys and in some cases furniture to these needy charities.

Reducing this home inventory, which is largely made up of outdated clothing, contributes greatly to an organized room or closet. It is amazing how much stuff in a closet will never be used again and this is the main reason Organizers To The Rescue are successful.

They are able to come in and determine what has to go and what stays (naturally with the approval of the client). The investment of having a professional organizing team coming into the home or office is more far reaching than what may meet the eye and all with the utmost of confidentiality.

The team will be able to reduce 'the stuff' in your place by 20%, which is significant.

One of the best investments a person can make prior to selling their home is, calling Organizers to the Rescue. It has been said that it takes money to make money and in this case if your 'home for sale' is a mess, frankly, it won't sell!

Calling the Organizing team will certainly help to make your home show better and hopefully sell faster and at a better price. Any real estate agent will agree that a neat, organized home is a better product to be shown.

Janis comments: "Experts estimate that we spend 60 hours a year just looking for things. According to the American Demographics Society, Americans waste nine million hours per day searching for misplaced items."

Another very unique reason for calling in the team is the fact that they motivate, educate and suggest ways to maintain what they were able to accomplish. Organizers to the Rescue vans can be seen all over Rockland, Orange and Bergen as they move from client to client.

They can be reached via e-mail at organizerstotherescue@yahoo.com or by calling 845-753-8080. This could be one of your most important phone calls of the new year - bringing a little order into your life.
